Course Overview

This course provides an overview of sociocultural approaches to second language (L2) learning and teaching by introducing foundational and emergent theories and concepts that have shaped and guided research and teaching practice in this area. It will build on your knowledge of second language acquisition (SLA) and encourage you to consider how sociocultural approaches can inform work in this area. Topics covered will include, but are not limited to, the quality of interaction desired for L2 learning and development, the role of the first language (L1) in L2 learning, learner agency and identity, and the roles of teachers and peers as socializing agents.

The course will examine the implications that sociocultural theories have for the teaching of English as an English as an additional language (EAL). You will be encouraged to use the concepts and insights provided by this course to reflect on and analyze interactions that transpire in your own classrooms. Thus, the major goal of this seminar is to provide you with a set of tools that you can use to reflect on your teaching and promote student learning. More specifically, the course aims to help you develop a solid understanding of sociocultural concepts and principles and make practical applications of this knowledge in your own situations, and thereby to facilitate your learning and development as English language teachers.

Note: This is a reading heavy course that requires lots of peer collaboration.

Key Course Outcomes

Upon successful completion of this course, participants should be able to:

1. Understand the relationship between theory and practice in L2 education (DP2)
2. Define major sociocultural concepts (DP4 & DP5)
3. Discuss the possible relationships among language, interaction, and learning
4. Explain the role of learner agency in L2 learning and consider constraints and resources in different situations (DP4 & DP7)
5. Discuss the role of teachers both as facilitators of student learning and as agents of their own continuing professional development (DP10)
6. Use sociocultural tools to examine and discuss the teaching-learning processes that take place in their classrooms (P10)

Note. DP is an abbreviation of Diploma Policy Statements. TESOL Program statements (objectives) can be found here. Numbers correspond to the statement(s) emphasized in each course outcome.

4. Article Presentations and Discussion Leading (15%)

5. Term Paper (40%)

More details will be provided after Day 1.

Instructor Bio:

I am a professor and Deputy Chair of the English Department at Kanda University of International Studies (KUIS), cross-appointed to the MATESOL Program. I received my MA in TESOL from the Monterey Institute of International Studies, and my PhD in Language and Literacy Education (with a specialization in TESL) from the University of British Columbia. I have had the pleasure of meeting a number of teachers and supervisors through workshops and school visits since I joined KUIS in 2006. My research interests include academic discourse socialization, integrated language and content instruction, second language (L2) teacher learning and development, dialogic learning, and task-based L2 learning. I have supervised a number of MA projects and BA theses in these areas.
